

Dear TallyMoney customer

You've asked us to send you this information to pass on to your bank or non-bank financial institution, in order to provide them with key information about your TallyMoney Account.

We understand that all financial institutions must do their due diligence when it comes to protecting your money, and recent legislative changes have increased the requirements in this regard. Rest assured that here at TallyMoney we have thousands of customers who have their linked account (their main, named, non TallyMoney Account) with the full range of high street and digital banking services including Lloyds, Barclays, HSBC, Nationwide, Starling, Revolut, Monzo and many more, and regularly use these accounts to make deposits to their TallyMoney Account.

A lot of the information contained in this document is quite technical, but this should contain all of the information your bank needs.

To our customer's existing bank: if you need any further information, please do not hesitate to contact us at support@tallymoney.com so that our shared customers can access their money.

Regulated debit card issuer

TransactPay (www.transactpay.com) is also the regulated card issuer of TallyMoney's debit Mastercard® cards pursuant to licences issued by Mastercard International Limited.

How TallyMoney works

When GBP is sent to the IBAN Payment Account (issued by TransactPay as a licenced EMI), the funds are automatically exchanged for physical gold vaulted for and on behalf of the Tallymoney customer and the customer's ownership of the relevant quantity of vaulted gold is shown in milligrams, called tally®, in their TallyMoney Account (accessed via their Smartphone App). TallyMoney only uses LBMA accredited brokers to buy physical gold, which is stored in high security vaults with LBMA-accredited Brinks Global Services in Switzerland. Brinks is a 166-year-old NYSE-listed company providing institutional-grade precious metals custody services.

Added protection for customers

TallyMoney provides its precious metals buying/selling and custodial service, with the added protection of a security trust structure with FCA-licensed trustee Woodside Corporate Services Ltd (FCA No. 467652). Gold custody services are not a regulated activity so TallyMoney UK Ltd and its parent entity Tally Central Ltd are not licenced under the UK FCA (Financial Conduct Authority).
